The bids for motorcycle for city marshal were opened and declared as follows: Glendale Garage $365.00; Glendale Auto and Machine Co., $347.50. Bids were rejected and advertisement ordered republished in local and Los Angeles papers. Ordinance of intention to open and widen Brand boulevard was referred to public works committee. The reports of clerk, manager of electric light works, treasurer and marshal were received and placed on file.

Trustee Coker offered resolution ordering certain street work to be done on Louise street which was read and adopted. Trustee Lane offered a resolution ordering work done on First street, which was adopted. (Trustee Watson entered at 8:30.)

An ordinance amending one section of Ordinance 131 relating to rates for electricity was read third time and passed. An ordinance amending sections 6 and 7 and striking therefrom section 8 of Ordinance 48, was read first and second times and referred to the police and sanitary committee with the building inspector. QUEEN ESTHER.

Among the many characters used in telling the story of "Queen Esther" that of Mordecai is conspicuous both from a musical and dramatic standpoint, he is celebrated as being instrumental in saving the Jewish people from destruction incurred by Haman's hatred, through his influence over Esther, the queen who finally saves them by showing Haman's plot to the king. In the cantata Mordecai is the central figure in the third scene where he has some strong and beautiful vocal and dramatic work. This part will be assumed by Mr. A. R. Taylor, who has shown in the rehearsals splendid ability to sing and portray the character.

The cantata will be given three nights—Thursday, Friday and Saturday—at Filger's Opera house, and the advance sale indicates large audiences each night.

CITY HALL AND LIBRARY SITES.

The city has acquired title to these sites, and is now only waiting on the architect in order to advertise for bids on the city hall building. The trouble in regard to the securing of a satisfactory deed and title to one of the city hall site lots has been satisfactorily adjusted.

The above figures are given without prejudice and are approximately correct. Possibly the balances shown will not check up absolutely correct, but the differences will be immaterial. HOW WE GROW.

An interview the other day with School Superintendent Mark Keppel disclosed some interesting and almost startling facts in regard to the growth of Los Angeles county. Mr. Keppel can tell you things about this growth which almost makes your head swim. Here are just a few of his figures:

Average attendance at the grammar schools last year, 50,875; this year 55,800. The average attendance in Pasadena is 3595, the population of that place 31,000. Santa Monica average attendance 1023, population about 10,000. Pomona average attendance, 1499, population about 12,000. Los Angeles city shows an increase of only 2570, the average attendance there for this year being 33,074, with a population of 319,000. These figures indicate that the gain outside of the city of Los Angeles within the county is forty per cent greater than in that city; the population of the outside country being only 185,000, the gain in average attendance in the outside districts being 2455. This increase in school attendance indicates an increase in population during the year of something like 50,000 people, enough, as will be noticed in the above figures to populate the three cities of Pasadena, Pomona and Santa Monica. Mr. Keppel's conclusion is that by 1920 the population of the county will be a million two hundred thousand.

THE KING CASE.

The case of Mrs. Fannie Briggs Carr (King) against M. A. King and Pinkard King, charging them with assault, which was postponed for a week when called Thursday last in Recorder Whomes' court, because of non-appearance of the prosecuting witness, comes to trial this (Thursday) afternoon as we go to press. In the meantime Mr. King has had his ex-wife and her loyal servant, Castillo, arrested on a charge of attempt to kill. They were brought before Los Angeles Justice and held in $1500 bail to appear for trial in a few days. [Case again postponed until Tuesday, August 29th, at 10 a. m.]

NEW MASONIC LODGE.

Eagle Rock Lodge F. & A. M. received its charter and held its first meeting in their new hall at Eagle Rock Thursday evening of last week. The lodge starts out with a good membership and will no doubt prosper. The hall is large and well equipped.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Usual services during the day. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. by Rev. J. H. Burma of Dallas, Texas.

BORN.

On Tuesday of last week, to Mr. and Mrs. Logan Fairchild, a son.

THE SCHOOL MEETING TONIGHT.

The meeting of citizens called for this evening at Odd Fellows hall to give further instructions to the trustees of the school board in regard to the purchase of property upon which to erect school building or buildings, should be well attended. The notice as it appeared in last week's NEWS was slightly misleading in that it conveyed the impression that the meeting is called because the trustees are dissatisfied with the site between Third and Fourth and Jackson and Kenwood streets. The trustees freely admit that they are not satisfied with this selection, but not for that reason alone would they have been justified in calling the meeting. They were instructed to purchase that site, but find that two of the lots belong to an estate the agent of which cannot be reached without a great deal of delay, and in regard to a third the title is unsatisfactory. It is necessary that no time be lost in getting the school building started so that it may be ready for use by Jan. 1st, so it would seem that the purchase of this property is out of the question. It is probable that the citizens who voted in favor of this site did not thoroughly understand the situation or they would not have done so in the first place. There are two serious objections to this location. In the first place, the grounds are shut off from Fourth street by a tier of lots which will no doubt before long have business structures upon them, presenting to the school a view of back lots and shutting off a free circulation of air. In the second place it is very unlikely that it would be possible to add any additional grounds in the future if required, and lastly there is a depression of three or four feet on the Kenwood street side which would have to be filled in at an expense estimated at from two to three thousand dollars. As an alternative proposition the trustees will recommend another site in the next block north, on the north side of Third street between Jackson and Kenwood, consisting of six lots and a frontage of 200 feet on Third street and 150 feet deep—on five of these lots options have been secured while a verbal agreement exists as to the other. In addition to this two other lots are available on the north. The cost of these six lots is $8100. The cost of the eight lots comprising the first site was fixed at about $7400, to which should be added the cost of filling in, say $2500, making a total of $9900.

THE ALFALFA WEEVIL.

California fruit growers have conquered the white scale, the purple scale, the red and yellow scale and a few others, and are keeping the black scale pretty well in check and are reaping the reward of their intelligence and persistence in the warfare against natural enemies; and now it seems as if the California farmer may have a hard fight ahead in fighting the alfalfa weevil which has got along as far as Utah and may be expected to arrive here at any time. The insect pictures the stem of the plant and lays its eggs, often over a hundred of them, and the usefulness of the plant is ended. The weevil is about a quarter of an inch in length. Farmers should be on the lookout for it.

Site of the Panama-Pacific Exposition

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The site of the Panama-Pacific international exposition was settled today, after several months of conference. The result is a compromise between the two sites of Harbor View and Golden Gate park, with a view of giving the city the greatest amount of permanent improvement possible, especially along the water front.

The industrial buildings and other temporary structures of the exposition will be erected at Harbor View, overlooking the entrance to the harbor. A permanent yachting and boating course also will be made there.

All permanent buildings, museums and the like will be placed in Golden Gate park, excepting an enormous convention hall to be located at the civic center of the city, at Van Ness and Market streets. The other permanent improvements will be the beautification of the whole water front from the Cliff House to the ferry. Boulevards will connect the different buildings, and a part of the fair will be placed in Lincoln park, which stands on the most westerly point of the city, overlooking the Golden Gate itself.

E. T. EARL MAKES PURCHASE IN LA CANADA.

Mr. E. T. Earl of the Los Angeles Express, is one of the latest addition to the list of landed proprietors in La Canada. Mr. Earl has bought forty acres adjoining the old Hall place, a mile north of Michigan avenue, at the base of the mountains, and is said to have acquired an option on one hundred and twenty acres more in the same locality. It is not known whether he will build at present, but the present tenant has been served with notice to leave and it is understood that the work of improving the property will begin at once.

Mr. Freeman G. Kelly returned Tuesday from San Francisco where he saw Mrs. Kelly aboard the steamer bound for Australia, her old home, for a visit of several months' duration. On his return Mr. Kelly visited friends in Fresno who took him on a thirty mile auto ride about the valley. He was astonished at the development of that section which he had not visited for thirty years. Fresno is a small city as to territory but has a population of 30,000 progressive people, while the territory immediately surrounding it is well covered by beautiful homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Whitaker entertained very delightfully last Friday evening at their home, Casa Lomita, the members of their bridal party, of last year, also a few other young friends from Los Angeles and Glendale.

Progressive five hundred was played during the first part of the evening. Miss Alice Frank and Mr. Charles Hunt capturing the prizes. At the close of the games a dainty supper was served, followed by some very enjoyable music.

SOCIALIST MEETING.

The meeting at K. of P. hall, last Monday evening, was well attended. Mr. Alex. Irvine, an ex-minister, delivered an interesting lecture which was well received by the audience.

WOODS HOTEL.

The following are late arrivals: Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ege, Los Angeles; Kenneth W. Allen, M. D., San Fernando; J. P. Price, Mojave.

Miss Lucile Parker of Lomita avenue, Miss Myrtle and Miss Emma Pulliam of Kenwood street and Miss Bernice Williams of Cedar street were guests of a matinee party at the Orpheum on Tuesday afternoon.

OVER THE HIGH SIERRAS

Glendale Travelers Return from a Walk-over

Mr. L. W. Chobe and Mr. Alfred Muhleman returned a few days ago from a two weeks' trip which deserves to be recorded in the annals of the Sierra Club. They provisioned themselves with an eight days' supply of condensed food and, at Olanche, near the head of the Owens river aqueduct, struck out afoot for the heart of the mountains, their objective being the Kings river country on the other side of the highest mountain range in the United States. In about thirteen days they tramped two hundred and fifty miles, being seven days in making the trip from Olanche to Harrison Pass, elevation twelve thousand five hundred feet. They had heard of the unprecedented snow fall of the past winter and were somewhat prepared for the arctic aspect of the high ranges, but it was beyond their expectations. They traveled for days among snow and ice over a trail that was marked by small rocks piled upon larger ones with no other evidence of any other human being having been there before them. The last day of their journey above the timber line as they approached the summit, was over a Titanic waste of rocks piled up by some great convulsion that left them heaped up without "form or semblance" and without the slightest relief such as might have been occasioned by some sign of life, either vegetable or animal, except that once a mountain lion was seen slinking off into his cave and again when a brace of grouse went whirring through the wintry air. But when near the summit they came upon a ghastly reminder of a tragedy when they discovered the bleached bones of a human being and near them a hunting knife. The mountain climbers usually go over the Kearsarge Pass at a lower elevation, more circuitous and an easier grade, but Messrs. Chobe and Muhleman in their desire to see the wildest views that the "Alps of America" afford, had turned aside from that beaten trail and gone to the summit of the divide by a route rarely followed; still they were somewhat surprised to be told when they did arrive at the other side that they were the first travelers who had passed over in four years. The day they reached the summit had been one of hard climbing and arriving there at 6 o'clock in the evening they looked over the brink of a precipitous wall for 2000 feet and were not made to feel easy by the prospect. But it was near nightfall, there was not a splinter of wood available for a fire and the air was wintry; three or four thousand feet below and seven miles away was the timber line which had to be attained, there was no choice but to go ahead. It was not solid rock even but a ridge of loose boulders and broken stone, but the descent of 2000 feet was made in twenty minutes and a night's camping place some hours later. The travelers came out on the Kings river side at Kanawha, a little station some fifty miles up in the mountain where a few burros are kept and a guide can be furnished ambitious mountain climbers. On the downward trip they made a detour into the Sequoia groves of the upper Kings river. On the way up they fished in the stream where are found the wonderful "Golden Trout," of which it is said they are found nowhere else in America. A few of these were caught, small but beautiful golden specimens. In Kaweah creek, however, fish were caught nearly a foot long.

Mr. Chobe is particularly enthusiastic over the wonderful variety and the great number of wild flowers that they found on the edge of the snow line. The travelers carried a camera and brought back with them a large number of fine views.

Every employee, who in any way comes in contact with the operation of trains on the Southern Pacific, be he superintendent, signal man or section foreman, is required to own a watch, so adjusted as not to exceed a variation of ten seconds in any twenty-four hours. The examination of each man's watch includes the subjecting of the instrument to severe tests of temperature and the placing of the watch in several different positions in an endeavor to discover a variation. To be retained in service a watch must not show a variation of more than 30 seconds per week.

GLENDAL, CAL., AUGUST 11, 1911

The conviction of four union labor sluggers in Chicago is a hopeful augury and indicates that law and order may yet triumph in that city.

Our former fellow townsman, M. Z. Remsburg who left Glendale about a year ago for Escondido, has severed his connection with the Times-Advocate of that place as editor and manager, a position in which he has done excellent work.

There are threats of a revolution among the people of Iowa, Kansas, because Judge Smeltzer has sentenced a woman to the chain gang. The judge insists that as she has broken the law precisely as have the male members of the gang, there is no reason in law and justice why she should not be meted out the same punishment. She will be furnished bloomers at the expense of the city. Next!

This is the time of year when the wheels of justice as represented by the courts, grind with exceeding slowness. It matters not what the pressure of public business may be; how much the interests of litigants may suffer by delay—the judges must have their vacations! Usually they take the pending cases with them and interested parties count the days until they return.

Let us hope that the vacations are not altogether in vain; possibly kindly nature purges their systems of at least a small portion of human frailty while the spirit of Solomon and the blindfolded lady with the scales obsess them. When the proposed amendments to the constitution which when adopted will regenerate the world, are adopted, can we recall the judges from the seashore and the mountains?

This is a time of unrest and also of humbug. All sorts of reformers are abroad in the land with their peculiar specifics for the ills of humanity; and if the body politic ever does get into a perfectly healthy condition, it is likely to be because the people finally relapse into a condition where they are willing to be guided more by the common sense wisdom gathered from the experience of the ages, than by placing dependence upon the patent nostrums offered on every street corner. In the meantime the good and wholesome old remedies applied day by day to and by the individual members of society will probably keep things moving upward and onward for at least as long as the present generation of human beings have any interest in mundane affairs.

SUBSCRIBER MUST PAY.

The acceptance of a newspaper makes the recipient liable for the subscription price, according to a decision handed down last week by the Kansas City (Mo.) Court of Appeals. The case in question was that of O. D. Austin, publisher of the Bates County Record, at Butler, against Chas. Burge, a subscriber. The latter paid for the paper twice and then refused to pay again. He said he had ordered it stopped. The court said:

"The preparation and publication of a newspaper involves much mental and physical labor, as well as an outlay of money. One who accepts the paper by continuously taking it from the postoffice receives a benefit and pleasure arising from such labor and expenditure as fully as if he had appropriated any other product of another's labor, and by such act he must be held liable for the subscription price."

LEMONS.

The house has put lemons on the free list and the senate has voted to retain the present tariff of a cent and a half a pound. The matter now goes to conference and the result will probably be a compromise by which the old duty of a cent a pound will be retained. The latter figure is perfectly equitable and should be acceptable to California growers. It should not have been increased and was only done so in the spirit of greediness which has characterized all of our Chamber of Commerce statesmanship in Washington.

It does not in the long run pay to be unfair. The theory of a protective tariff is well established and generally believed in by the people of the United States, but it has been so abused that there is a real danger that in the reaction that is going on we may be put down to a "tariff for revenue" basis, which would, judging by the past, be a costly experience. The lemon industry of California needs a fair measure of protection. To take the duty off this product of our orchards would undoubtedly have the effect of reducing the output and so in the end would prove not only disastrous to the growers, but be equally hard on the consumers who would find the supply diminished and be put at the mercy of the importers who would raise the price as high as the traffic would bear. Our representatives at Washington should stand firmly for a reasonable tariff on citrus fruits, but be willing to consider some abatement from the present schedule.

A MARVEL OF DEVELOPMENT.

Ten years ago the Imperial Valley was well named "The Great American Desert." Along the route of the trail across its wastes, between the few watering places, were numerous graves and bleaching skeletons of unknown victims of the dreaded waste where only the animal and reptiles of the desert could exist.

Then came a man with imagination who saw that the great valley lying below the level of the sea could be irrigated by the water from the distant Colorado, and be made to "blossom as the rose." But he died without seeing except with the eye of his mind, the great transformation. After him came others who believed in his dream and among them one who became obsessed of the idea that the desert must be redeemed. His efforts to interest capitalists in the enterprise, furnish a story so romantic as to be almost unbelievable, but at last he succeeded and the great canals were built. Did the desert blossom? Up to date this season there has been shipped out of the Imperial Valley 2600 carloads of melons. In one day there was shipped 133 carloads, making a train over a mile long. Every car contained 324 crates; a crate containing 45 melons. But his is only one of the industries of the valley of magic. All the way from Brawley, on the main line, southward to Calexico on the Mexican boundary, a distance of fifty miles or so, the country is one solid productive field of cotton, corn, alfalfa, and all the ordinary crops of the California farm. Half a dozen towns have grown up with all the conveniences and luxuries of twentieth century civilization. As an example of rapid development the Imperial valley is the marvel of an era of marvelous things.

LATEST ANNEXATION PROJECT.

An endeavor is being made to annex to Los Angeles a large tract of territory lying to its easterly and northerly boundary, comprising about thirty square miles, having a population of 25,000 inhabitants and an assessed valuation of approximately $400,000.

Should this territory be annexed to Los Angeles, it would carry the boundaries of that city to Tropic, Glendale, Eagle Rock, Pasadena, South Pasadena and Alhambra. It includes a large portion of the Arroyo Seco, which the Los Angeles park commission hopes to be able to convert into a great public park at no distant date.

Work of circulating petitions for the annexation of this territory to Los Angeles commenced Friday morning under the direction of J. P. Steele, who has charge of the annexation campaign. Forty men are engaged in the work, and it is Mr. Steele's hope to secure 16,000 signatures in ten days' time. The petitions are being circulated in Los Angeles city. It will take a two-thirds vote to carry the election in the territory to be annexed while in the city of Los Angeles but a majority vote will be required.

The petitions to be circulated will show that the people in the territory to be annexed will assume their proportion of Los Angeles' obligations and bonded indebtedness. This indebtedness upon which the people in the territory to be annexed will have to pay their share amounts to about $33,230,275. The amount of taxes which the people of the annexed territory will have to pay on this bonded indebtedness will be about $200,000, which would be paid the city of Los Angeles. The tax rate in this outside territory now is only a little bit less than the tax rate within the city limits of Los Angeles.—Northwest Enterprise.

OUR SCHOOLS.

The figures we give elsewhere showing our expenditure for schools will prove of interest to our citizens, particularly the taxpayers. They certainly prove that we are a generous people and they indicate also our remarkable growth. This community ranks among the first in its liberal contributions for school purposes, but there are a number of others that are paying relatively much more.

One new and rapidly growing district in the county has a school employing twelve teachers which is already full, and the district has taxed itself so nearly to the legal limit (five per cent of the valuation for grammar schools) that it has practically no further resources while the community has only just begun to grow.

The problem of education becomes constantly more complex and the general opinion seems to be that like the tariff, our school system should be revised downward. The president of the National Educational Association speaking at the recent session of that body in San Francisco said, "A child that suffers no hardship is on the way to perdition. If nothing else the school must teach accuracy, perseverance and endurance."

"Enriching the curriculum was a great idea, but it has been subject to endless abuse. The time has come to apply the philosophy of the simple life to education." The above indicates a wide difference of opinion among educational authorities, for the present system is not based upon the ideas expressed by President Baker. The use of apparatus and the impression of ideas upon the mind of the pupil through the eye, is no doubt in some cases carried to an excess that certainly does not develop the reasoning faculties, even if it does make easy the acquirement of superficial knowledge. And the parent assists in the effort to "make it easy" for the child by insisting that the school house must be near at hand, the hours of study few and the dangers of brain fog be eliminated.

Editor GLENDAL NEWS.

Dear Sir: As for reasons best known to themselves, your correspondents who made the attempt to answer the articles of J. L. W. have concluded not to attack me. I would not have further considered the subject, but my amazement in your issue of last week you editorially state that one desire to know "what I am driving at." That I am "purporting" to be "A Gentleman of Leisure." That I am endeavoring to "make the wicked leisure class look as black as possible." By what process of construction and reasoning do you arrive at such a conclusion? If one under any system, either by brains or because of inheritance secure a competence of such magnitude that one is enabled to cast aside the toil and cares of the ordinary mortal and become "A Gentleman of Leisure," who has the right either legal or moral to cast a reflection of unfairness upon such an one. While we must necessarily have a class of toilers to provide for those more fortunately envied, it does not follow that a toiler should not envy and aspire to a condition of leisure.

I exceedingly regret that the article in question should have been the cause of your losing even one subscriber, but I much more regret that we should have those in our midst who not agreeing with or misunderstanding the import of an article, should without an attempt at answering or investigating be so indiscreet as to lay up the blame to the editor and order his paper stopped. Such a person does not realize what an editor is "up against" that a community lacking such a medium is compared to a ship at sea minus a rudder. That a free and fair discussion is the only means by which one can hope to solve life's problems; that though our friend may be absolutely sure that his conclusions are the last word, there is still a possibility that he is fallible.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, relative to those who are hungry for my scalp, you are at liberty to give them my address with the condition that you give me the address of each who so desire it, exacting the promise from them that should they contemplate calling upon me, they leave all deadly weapons at home.

Under such conditions I shall be delighted to explain why I revel in being,

A GENTLEMAN OF LEISURE.

GIGANTIC SUFFRAGE DEMONSTRATION FIVE MILES LONG.

Though a little behind time, the following picturesque description of the great suffrage procession held in London a few days before King George's coronation will probably be interesting to readers of the NEWS.

The women have had triumphal processions before—though not as yet so often as to blunt by familiarity the public sense of their beauty and uncommonness—but this was beyond them all in numbers and effect.

At the head of the procession there were two arresting figures which embodied and gave dramatic expression, each in its different way, to the spirit of the demonstration. The first was the standard-bearer, carrying the purple, white and green colors of the Women's Social and Political Union—a slim, fair girl in white, who was given this post of high distinction because she had endured weeks of forcible feeding in prison. The other was a striking personation of Joan of Arc. Next came the martyrs of the cause, nearly a thousand strong, led by their fighting leaders, Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Petherick Lawrence and Miss Christabel Pankhurst, the latter in academic dress.

The artistic elements of the procession were many. Nothing could be better than the historical pageant illustrating the prominence and distinction of women in public life in the middle ages.

Standing out of the throng was Abess Hilda, founder of the Benedictine Monastery at Whitby, who presided over an ecclesiastical synod in 664. In this contingent was also seen Queen Elizabeth, a tall, commanding figure in jeweled array. Interesting, too, was the group which immediately followed, of great women of the nineteenth century. Here were Grace Darling, Jenny Lind, Florence Nightingale and Charlotte Bronte—to mention just a few of a little company in poke bonnets and ringlets.

Women of every class of society seemed to be united in the demonstration. Mainly, however, they were women of assured circumstances. The representatives of the wives and daughters of the working classes were comparatively few. On the other hand, many indications of wealth were to be observed, not least in the number of autos and smart carriages and pairs, festooned with flags and flowers.

The class, however, that loomed largest was what is usually known as the lower middle. Every profession, business and calling followed by women was represented. Every part of the kingdom was represented. The procession took two and a half hours to pass a given point. The march, toilsome and trying though it must have been, was well maintained, in spirit as well as in stateliness, showing a wonderful capacity to endure physical strain and discomfort.

PERSONAL ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hezmalbach and children have been staying in Glendale for the past three weeks with the father of Mrs. Hezmalbach, Mr. B. F. Patterson. Both have been taking medical treatment of a Los Angeles specialist and have been so much benefited that they left for their home at Olinda last Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary H. Gridley of Brand boulevard has recently been made the recipient of various new honors to be added to her already lengthy list. Mrs. W. W. Stetson, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has appointed Mrs. Gridley, regent of the New Los Angeles Chapter.

Mr. C. H. Bott returned some days ago from a camping trip of two weeks in the upper San Gabriel canon. While there he climbed to the summit of Baldy and was fortunate enough to be there just after a rain had cleared the atmosphere so that he had a magnificent view as far north as Mt. Whitney and southward into Mexico. While on the summit the party indulged in sledding and snow balling.

Mr. Martin Christensen returned this week from a three weeks' visit to his old home in Central Nebraska. He reports the present summer, the warmest three for thirty years. The wheat crop would probably average ten bushels, corn is still an uncertainty, but will be a light crop under even favorable conditions from this time on. In eastern Nebraska conditions have been more favorable and crops are reported fair.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Clotworthy who returned to their home on Vine street about two weeks ago, after half a year in Washington, D. C., are entertaining Mr. Richard Hatton of Washington. Mr. Hatton is son of former Postmaster General Hatton. While in Washington Mr. Clotworthy who is a journalist of national reputation, was instrumental in interesting many people in Southern California, two of whom have bought land in this section.

Used Another Man's Legs.

In the hall of the house of representatives there is a painting of George Washington. He looks a most commanding person, with the stature of a giant and a faultless physique. But looking at the portrait recently a public man commented:

"That is a good deal of a sham. George Washington never looked like that, though I've no doubt he would have been proud to appear so magnificent."

"Notice the legs," the speaker continued. "They are perfect beauties, but they are not Washington's. They are the legs of General Smith of New Jersey, a soldier of the Revolution."

"It happened this way," he explained in conclusion: "Washington had quite unimpressive legs, and the artist who painted that picture was so dissatisfied with their shape that he persuaded General Smith to lend his faultless members as models. So, while we have the face and torso of our great first president, the supporting legs are those of one of his generals. Long may they stand!"—Washington Post.

Not the Answer He Expected.

One of Lord Desborough's best anecdotes relates to a clergyman who was far more at home in the hunting field than in the pulpit, says London Tit-Bits. On the morning of a meet he was much annoyed at having to officiate at a funeral; but, this over, he mounted his horse and started in pursuit of his friends. On the road he sought information of an old woman with a donkey cart.

"Well," she said, "if you ride to the top of the hill you will come to a meaner." Then if you turn to the right you will be likely to come up with them."

Handing her a shilling, he said, "My good woman, why did you call the sign post a minister?"

"Why, you see, sir, it's like this: We used to call 'em sign posts, but since you've been in these parts we call 'em ministers, 'cos, though they points other folks the way, they never goes themselves. Go on, Noddy!"

Death in Factory Fires.

The question is often debated as to whether persons who lose their lives in a fire developing with great rapidity undergo extreme physical suffering. An authoritative opinion is expressed by the New York Medical Journal, which says: "Unnecessary anguish of mind has probably been felt by relatives of unfortunate workers killed in factory fires by reflection on the supposedly agonizing pain caused by such a death. Where a great bulk of highly inflammable substances is quickly consumed in a closed space the result is the production of large quantities of carbon monoxide. This gas, it is well known, combines with the haemoglobin of the blood to form a compound that refuses to combine with oxygen. The result is a speedy and probably painless asphyxiation before the flames have had a chance to attack the bodies of the victims."

A Weather Prophet.

"Now, Mrs. Brown, I have planned up your new almanac." "Oh, thank 'ee, miss, thank 'ee, but my corns tell me the weather far better than any of your 'ere almanacs!"—London Opinion.

MAKING THE MAP OF CALIFORNIA

Steady progress is being made in the construction of the great topographic map of California by the United States Geological Survey and the state. This huge map will be when completed a work of which both the Federal government and California may well be proud. It will be made up of a large number of sheets of uniform size, each representing a rectangular area called a quadrangle. Already 170 quadrangles have been surveyed, most of them in great detail, and an atlas sheet for each has been engraved and printed by the survey. These quadrangles include areas ranging from the vast flat reaches of the Sacramento Valley to the glacier-laden peaks of the high Sierra.

Perhaps the most comprehensive and detailed topographic mapping in the world has been that of the broad Sacramento Valley, comprising an area of more than 3,000,000 acres. This has already been completely surveyed by the topographers of the United States Geological Survey, in co-operation with the state of California, the survey and the state each paying half the cost. This mapping has been done on a scale of 2 inches to 1 mile with a 5-foot contour interval, each map showing an area 7 1/2 minutes square. The survey covers all land possible of irrigation between Red Bluff on the north and Suisun Bay and Stockton on the south.

Surveys of the same class are now being pushed southward under a similar co-operative agreement between the state and the Geological Survey. The present field-season's plans include the mapping of the area near Stockton and farther south in the San Joaquin Valley. The maps will be on the same scale and contour interval as those of the Sacramento and the topographers expect to survey this season twelve 7 1/2 minute quadrangles and later to continue the work down to the hill country south of Bakersfield. When this work is completed it will afford for the great twin valley empire of California an exact geographic basis for engineering development of any class—irrigation, drainage, road or bridge construction—in fact, any work requiring accurate determination of levels.

The possibilities lying in the reclamation of this extensive California valley are sufficiently stupendous to waken the interest of the most ambitious engineer. The Sacramento river drains a vast mountain region and carries water sufficient to irrigate an estimated area of 12 or 13 million acres—not only all of its own immensely fertile valley, but likewise the agriculturally almost inexhaustible lands of the San Joaquin Valley. The harnessing of Sacramento river is doubtless one of the great engineering problems of the country and millions of dollars have already been spent in largely futile attempts to control this rampant monster in time of flood, but there is no lack of engineers who believe the task a feasible one.

ANOTHER STEP TOWARD UNIVERSAL TELEPHONE SERVICE.

Covina, Azusa and Glendora Join Their 1300 Subscribers to the "Bell" System.

The Pacific (Sunset) Telephone and Telegraph Company completed yesterday one of the most important deals involving telephone service that has ever taken place in Southern California. Toll or long distance connections were made with the Home Telephone Company of Covina.

The Covina company operates two local telephone systems out of Covina and Azusa, and has over 1300 subscribers located in Covina, Azusa, Glendora, San Dimas, Puente, Baldwin Park, Bassett, Walnut Center, Charter Oak, Irwindale and Rowland. This latest connection puts all such subscribers in direct touch with the toll lines of the Pacific Telephone Company, whose lines cover the entire Pacific Coast, and also Arizona and Imperial Valley, the new Arizona lines having only recently been completed. Vice versa, all subscribers of the Pacific Company now have direct access to 1300 subscribers of the Covina company.

This toll connection increases to a greater extent than ever the advantages which the Pacific company is able to offer its subscribers. It is similar to other connections made within the past year with the Home Telephone Company at Whittier, Monrovia, Downey, Sierra Madre, Huntington Beach and El Segundo, and is in line with the policy of the Pacific company—to furnish such comprehensive and universal telephone service that, like the highway system of the country, extending from every door to every other door, every one at every place may be reached over its telephone lines.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE nomination of Kelvin and Rollins came as an astounding surprise to the public, for their names in connection with the presidency had been carefully suppressed throughout, though Senator Sawyer's publicity bureau had kept the papers full of both men in other ways. They were the new economic conscience. They were the new commercial philanthropy. They were the new justice. They were the new foe of the oppressor and friend of the poor. Kelvin, individually, had forced Henry Breed to reduce the price of bread permanently from 5 to 4 cents a loaf. That was the story that touched every man's tender heart.

A dozen favorite sons were first put in nomination at the convention, and then Senator Killian, recounting the story of the breaking up of the Stock Exchange and of the capture of the railroads, the smashing of the trusts and the reduction of the price of bread, put up Kelvin's name for consideration. Pandemonium broke loose as per schedule, one of those carefully arranged spontaneous outbursts so dear to American politics, and on its crest the nomination of Kelvin as candidate for the high office of president of the United States, the youngest man ever to achieve that honor, became but a mere counting of long since arranged for ballots, after which the convention much more calmly and rationally proceeded to nominate Rollins.

One-half of the public received those two names with gasps of gratitude; the other half received them with snarls of scorn, and the campaign was on. Kelvin, refusing to make a mountebank of himself, let his managers fight it out for him. Out upon his vast stretches of Long Island waste there now sprang up a long succession of residence blocks, each surrounded with its cement sidewalk, each containing neat little cement houses molded after the Edison idea, and each house set in a generous plot of ground. Water, light, sewerage, parks, schools, all were provided as if by magic, and the whole was under the management of the new and wonderful transportation system that Rollins had inaugurated at the same time.

As soon as the work had begun to assume form its magnitude could not escape the newspapers. Their first two questions were "What is this?" and "Who is doing it?" To both of these queries Kelvin's publicity bureau had a ready answer—light and air and cleanliness and life for the workingman at a cheaper price than he paid for darkness and poisoned atmosphere and dirt and death.

Kevin, appealed to, curtly pointed out that the scheme had been projected long before his name had been mentioned for the nomination and that it was merely one of Henry Breed's plans for the use of his enormous wealth in ameliorating the condition of mankind. Nor did he deny that the undertaking was expected to pay a legitimate rate of interest upon the outlay. He was entirely practical, he stated, and the inference was that he would make an entirely practical president; also a working president, for he was busy right up to the time of election.

As if arranged by Providence, a chance to display his vigorous practicality came just a few days before election. One Pellman, remembered as a once forceful man of Wall street, then as a "has-been," had suddenly blossomed into the limelight as the real estate sensation of New York. Working quietly, he had secured options upon tenement house districts, block after block in extent. Now he announced the formation of a monster terminal company which should take care of all the freight and passenger transportation entering New York and the erection of huge structures covering blocks in extent. Immediately following this notice of election were served upon every miserable dweller in the congested tenement districts that he had purchased. Thousands upon thousands of families were rendered homeless, and every newspaper blazed with the wholesale oppression.

Who then came to the rescue? Why, Kelvin, Kelvin the disburser of Breed's millions, Kelvin the annihilator of the Stock Exchange, Kelvin the breaker of trusts, Kelvin the reducer of the price of bread, Kelvin the poor man's friend, Kelvin the candidate for president of the United States! He would furnish them free transportation for themselves and their goods and chattels. He would at once install each homeless family in a separate little home of its own free of moving cost, and to avoid any suffering that might be attendant upon the confusion would stock each house with a week's provisions. Would a summer and fall of campaign speeches have beaten that? Countless thousands of dazed and helpless families thrust suddenly homeless into the streets attached themselves in pitiful home instinct each to a distressful little pile of battered and

Will Jones

FAMILIES WERE RENDERED HOMELESS, scratched and splintered and ragged goods and merely waited in numbed misery.

This tremendous dislodgment began with the early dawn. Nearing noon down the first of these narrow, misery clogged streets there came with military precision a strange procession of moving vans, and arrived at the first breastworks of household effects the leader of that procession announced briefly to those nearest him the terms of Kelvin's offer:

"Would they go?" A cheer answered that question, a cheer of mighty relief, as of famished men in sight of water, as of lost souls that had found the gates of paradise. Then began the most amazing begin in the history of civilization. Out to the new cement cities they were carried into fresh air and clean surroundings and a new life, away from squalor and disease and degradation, and though dazed by the change they were different people and better for it.

Through the day and the night for more than two weeks this tremendous exodus went on. Only Patsy McCalken, bereft of his leadership because there was no one to lead, put his stubby finger upon the facts.

"He said he'd take it away from me, and he done it, dash him!" exclaimed Mr. McCalken, half indignantly and half admiringly, his red face puffing redder and curlier little wrinkles forming upon both sides of the mole on his nose. "Them three districts would 'a' beat Kelvin in this election, and now there won't be enough voters left in the whole abattoir to wedge a come-on in a vestibule. And the whole game's a frameup. Breed's money's back of Kelvin, and it's Breed's money that's back of Pellman, and Breed gets his all out again by sellin' all this property to Pellman, and he's got the roads. It not only don't cost a cent to make all this election grand stand play from here to Frisco, but it makes money! Think of that, will you? If Kelvin frames up this deal he's a bigger man than Dick Croker, sure he is!"

Nobody, however, paid any attention to Patsy McCalken. Election night found Henry Breed, as eager in his interest as any child could have been, in New York for the first time in years, and with him came Lillian, Mrs. Rensselaer, Dr. Zephan and the usual servants. Two splendid suits on Kelvin's floor at the Esplanade were secured, and the common meeting point for all of them that night was a magnificent drawing room upon the corner overlooking the entrance to the park and also overlooking a moving picture bulletin which an enterprising newspaper had established there. Breed surveyed Kelvin and Rollins in turn with paternal delight, but he studied both men shrewdly and ended by putting his hand on Kelvin's shoulder.

with a laugh. "Suppose we scotch and make ready for dinner as quickly as we can. I ordered it rather early, and the butler would probably be glad to have this room."

Breed walked out into the hall with Kelvin. "I will be glad when the night is over, so I can go back to Forest Lakes," he confided to Phillip. "I cannot get out of my mind the fact of all that money there—alone. It—it calls to me, Phillip."

"Nonsense," replied Kelvin, glancing at him curiously. The old man was prone to pass from normality to abnormality and back again with not only surprising but discomforting swiftness. "No one knows about it, and an army could not force the vaults."

"It isn't that," Breed half whispered. "It—it calls to me, I say. I hear it in tongues of silver and of gold and in soft, silken rustlings when I try to sleep away from home. As for safety, it's safe enough, but it—it calls me—not for protection, you know, but for company—just company—not that it's afraid. It knows that I have guarded it well. I have doubled my force of watchmen around there, did you know? I have almost a regiment—"

Ignorant fellows that I have brought up from the mountains, men who know nothing but how to handle a gun. I have a solid line of them all around the house and all around the walls and all around the drives, with instructions to shoot the first man that comes near. His voice sank to a whisper. "They have shot two in the past month. They dragged them away and buried them at night." Kelvin turned to Breed, shocked and horror-stricken. The old man's eyes were blazing, and his hand as he laid it upon Phillip's arm was trembling, not with fright, but with some more lustful passion. "Mine is the appointed hand," he went on. "Mine is the appointed hand. From the just wrath of the Most High there is no escape."

"No, I presume not," admitted Kelvin, with calmness at least in his voice. "There is not so much to guard as there used to be," he suggested.

"No," admitted Breed, shaking his head, "that's true." He seemed quite cast down about it for a moment, then suddenly he chuckled shrilly. "But we'll get it all back, Phillip. It's only an investment, and when you become president and we get a senate and congress that we can handle my vault will receive every cash dollar in the United States. Then we'll see what we shall see." And he bobbed his old bald head like a toy mandarin.

"We shall see what we shall see," repeated Kelvin enigmatically and turned abruptly toward his suit. Lillian, sweeping down the hall after them, called to Phillip. He waited at his door for her. "I've a crow to pick with you," declared Lillian, drawing up closely to Phillip and putting her hand upon his forearm. "And what is it?" he asked, frowning slightly and making no attempt to conceal it. "Now, don't be cross," she rallied him playfully. "Now, don't be cross, you've got to see me in a month, and I have never written me a single letter. I never put myself on paper," returned Phillip.

The Tropic Interurban Sentinel believes that twenty miles an hour is fast enough for any one to travel on a country road. It would be so bad if autoists were allowed to go at that speed, but recently at Tropic a driver whose machine was going at between fourteen and sixteen miles an hour—it being impossible to keep the machine at an even fifteen miles per hour—was arrested and fined ten bucks. When it is understood that most machines when traveling at between twenty and thirty miles an hour can stop in about two lengths of the machine, it wouldn't be altogether unreasonable to allow them to go up to thirty miles on the country road. Some drivers go that fast on the principal streets of Los Angeles and the accidents are remarkably few and far between.

LOS ANGELES THEATRES

MAJESTIC THEATER—"BABY MINE."

"Laugh and grow fat." This is the universal opinion of everybody who has seen William A. Brady's play of a thousand laughs, "Baby Mine," the product of Margaret Mayo's pen, which will be seen in Los Angeles for the first time Sunday night, August 13, at which time it will commence a two weeks' engagement at Hamburger's Majestic Theater.

This is just the sort of a play to turn tears into laughter, and to give life a rosy hue—so sayeth one of England's most famous critics, where "Baby Mine" is now running at Sir Charles Wyndham's Criterion theater, in London. And, it should be borne in mind, over in London town they have heretofore held a strong prejudice against plays of American manufacture, so this superlative praise is in favor of "Baby Mine" is all the more remarkable.

Manager Brady has sent to Los Angeles the company that played "Baby Mine" at Daly's theater all of last season. The list of players includes such well-known fun-makers as Walter Jones, Ernest Glendinning, Agnes De Lane, Marjorie Cortland, W. T. Carleton and others.

There will be popular priced matinees of "Baby Mine" on Wednesdays, and the regular matinees every Saturday.

BELASCO—"THE SPENDTHRIFT."

More than ordinary interest is attached to the Belasco company's production of Porter Emerson Browne's play, "The Spendthrift," this week, inasmuch as the performances will have the benefit of Thais Magrane's presence in the role she created when this fine play of modern American city life was originally tried out at the Belasco and in which she has ever since been appearing in the larger cities of the East.

The Belasco production of "The Spendthrift" is made by special arrangement with Frederic Thompson, who will send it on another tour of the chief cities of this country in the fall, with Miss Magrane as the star of the organization.

Following "The Spendthrift," the Belasco company will give the first stock performance of "The Gentleman From Mississippi," with the well-known actor, Burr McIntosh, in his original role of Senator Langley, the heavyweight, good-natured gentleman from the Southern state which gives the play its name.

MONTHLY BULLETIN OF THE CALIFORNIA DEVELOPMENT BOARD.

July was a typical summer month in California. Warm weather prevailed in the interior with afternoon temperatures in certain localities frequently above 100 degrees, but along the coast temperatures seldom exceeded 70 degrees, and with the exception of one or two days pleasant, comfortable conditions prevailed.

Little rain fell and what did was in the form of afternoon showers in the Sierra and in the southern portion of the state. The season has been a good one for nearly all interests. Fruit has ripened nicely and there has been no damage by hot north winds or dry periods to the grains. There appears to be plenty of moisture in the soil. Snow disappeared from the 7000-foot level by the 10th of the month. Conditions have been favorable for tourists and others going into the mountains, the snow of the higher levels maintaining streams and waterfalls at nearly full stage. In the Imperial valley section about the middle of the month some severe thunderstorms were reported.

The grain harvest is about over and the crops have generally yielded above the ten-year average, in some sections much more.

The acreage of sugar beets has largely increased and the stand is above the average. Slicing has begun in Butte and Glenn counties and at the new plant at Anaheim, in Orange county. The new factory at Huntington Beach is ready and will handle the crop from 10,000 acres.

Field vegetables are showing well. 2844 carloads of cantaloupes have been sent East from Imperial valley so far this season, setting the record 1000 cars ahead. Tomatoes doing well and much in demand.

Citrus fruit shipments for this season are nearly over and exceed those of last year at the same date by 12,231 carloads. The growing crop promises well and the "June drop" has been small.

The season has been late for deciduous fruits, and shipments are short compared with 1910, but there is now activity in all branches, shipping, drying and canning. Prices for all kinds are especially pleasing to the growers. Shipments of grapes have begun and fancy prices are being had.

Farmers and fruit growers are generally pleased with the outlook.

Cotton ginning has begun in Imperial valley. The Sacramento Ramie company will plant a large acreage next year. Cane sugar experiments in Southern California justify hopes of a new and lucrative industry.

Rice growing in the Sacramento valley has passed the experimental stage; it bids fair to become a profitable industry.

Railroad extensions and improvements, public and private building and manufacturing enterprises are active all over the state.

New reclamation and colonization projects are under way in every part of the state. One lately undertaken in Colusa county calls for preliminary outlay of $600,000.

Dredge and quartz mining are active and extending their scope. Oil development goes on apace and additional facilities are being provided. The Standard Oil Co. is reported as contemplating large expenditures in the Whittier and Fullerton districts.

The Great Western Power Co. is to have a cumulative series of plants on Feather river that will generate 500,000 horsepower; estimated cost $20,000,000.

Los Angeles parties are preparing to make large expenditures for developing white clay deposits in the Silver Lake district, Mohave desert.

Secretary of state reports 1841 new registrations of motor vehicles from June 29th to July 29th.

THE BURBANK EXTENSION.

The Pacific Electric have been rushing this work for the past week and it looks as if they might have the line ready for business by the 15th as promised. Two carloads of Cholos have been at work and rails have been placed rapidly. The connection at Arden avenue has been made so that construction cars are passing over. The westerly track of the main line at that point has been lowered slightly, the connecting line coming into it over a slight ascent. Last Sunday a car loaded with material was accidentally dumped over the bridge at Central avenue and that thoroughfare was blocked for several hours. In trying to pass along the road a big Knox touring car came to grief and had to be jacked out after some hours' delay.
